

Willard Knocks Out Johnson in The 26th Round

BIG KANSAN WINS CLEAN K. O. VICTORY

THE COWBOY TOOK ALL KINDS OF PUNISHMENT BUT NEGRO'S BLOWS LACKED OLD TIME STEEL

END IN THE 26TH ROUND

Both Men Fought Hammer and Tongue Throughout the Entire Contest. —Knockout Came Unexpectedly With Right Swing to Jaw.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.] The knockout was a terrific right swing to Johnson's jaw and the black man went down and out. It was Johnson's fight up to the actual knockout blow.

Havana, Cuba, March 5.—Jess Willard, the Kansas cowboy, is now the world's champion in the heavyweight class.

After twenty-six rounds of savage fighting he landed the knockout on the negro, who went down for the count.

It was a gruelling contest throughout and both men fought from the tap of the bell until the last count.

The big auditorium was crowded long before the principals entered the ring. Johnson arrived first and it was one-fifteen when he climbed through the ropes.

Willard followed, and the crowd, estimated at fifteen thousand, went wild with enthusiasm.

The crowd was good natured and during the entire bout kidded the contestants and urged them to hurry up so they could see the ropes.

The fight by rounds is as follows: Johnson in First.

Johnson entered the ring at 1:15 and Willard at 1:25. Broed cheering and yelling announced the appearance of Willard. The crowd went wild over the young giant, screaming and hand-clapping like mad as he crawled through the ropes.

Willard wore heavy sweater, blue trousers and black sombrero. In the challenger's corner were the manager, Tom Jones, Willard's manager, T. J. Gourke, Walter Moanah and J. Savage.

Jack Makes Kick. Johnson was seconded by Tom Finagan, George Monroe, Sam McVey, Dave Miller and Bob Armstrong. The ring is gradually cleared of all except Referee Jack Walsh, the seconds and the principals. Johnson objected to a woman spectator in the press ringside and she was removed to another seat. Johnson was clad in bright blue trunks and no belt. Willard was in dark blue. Willard weighed in at 237 and Johnson 225. They then took their stands.

Round One. Johnson feinted, landing his left to Willard's jaw. He repeated uppercuts to Willard's jaw. Willard is very nervous; Johnson is laughing. Willard drove two left blows to the body and Johnson returned with a right to Willard's body as the round closed.

Round Two. Johnson easily blocked Willard's lead and scored a right and left to Willard's jaw. Willard replied with a threatening right to the negro's body. Johnson hooked with three lefts to Willard's stomach and followed with three lefts to the body and Willard laughed. Johnson drove a series of blows to the body and drove Willard to the ropes with a tattoo of left jolts to the face.

Round Three. After much feinting Willard missed a right punch. Johnson rushed, scored a left to the body and right to the jaw and then left to body. Willard said, "Is that the way you do it?"

Willard Bleeding. Round 4. Willard lunged without effect. Much feinting followed. Johnson landed left to Willard's ribs and followed with a right to body and left to Willard's face. Willard is bleeding. Willard scored left to Johnson's nose.

Willard Boxes Badly. Round 5.—Johnson shot a left and right to Willard's face and in a clinch the negro smashed hard to Willard's ribs and put three short lefts to the stomach. He then rushed Willard to the ropes, punching his head and body. Willard badly distressed and rattled. The Kansas cowboy boxed like a cowboy in this round.

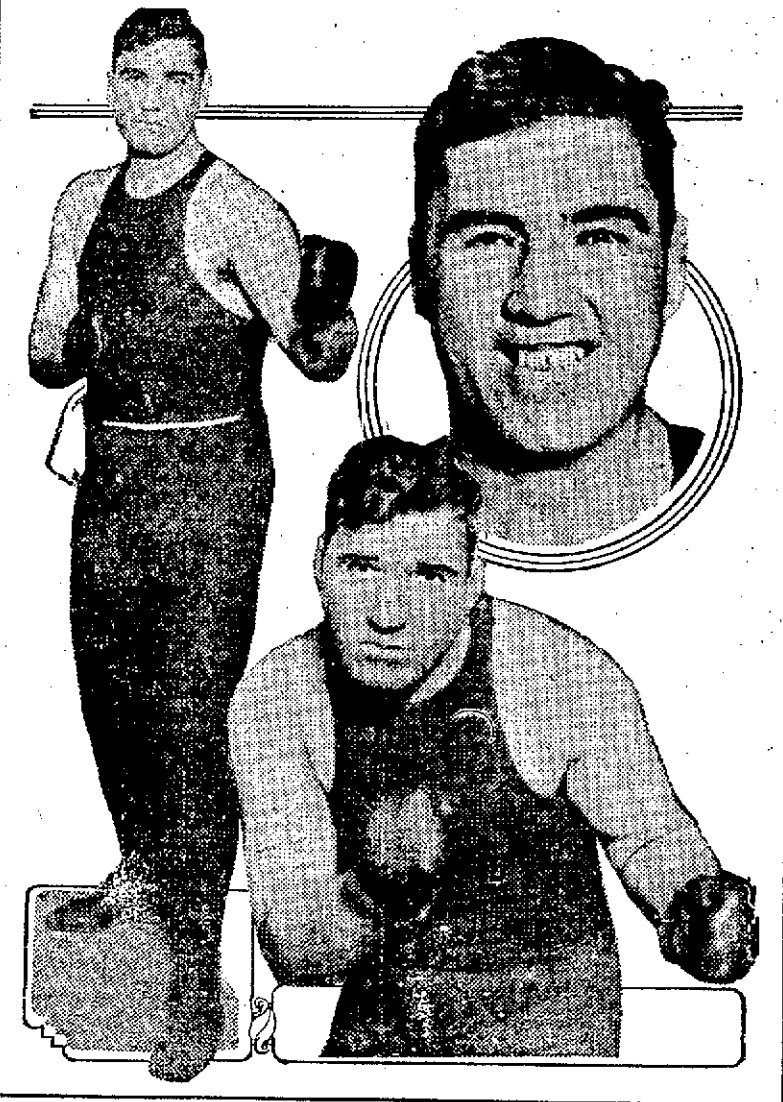

Round Seven. Johnson was doing the forcing. He rushed Willard to the ropes, slugging with both hands. Willard's long left temporarily blinded the negro's left eye. Johnson came back with a series of blows to Willard's body. It has been a hard fight so far.

Round Eight. Willard gaining confidence tried to force the pace. Johnson was willing. They battered each other across the ring. The negro hit the better of the argument. Willard landed on Johnson's mouth and Johnson unperceptibly Willard over the head. Willard bounded off the ropes and landed left to Willard's jaw. Johnson swung to Willard's head as gong rang.

Round Nine. Willard opened as the aggressor. Johnson started one of the cowboy's ears beating. Johnson's blows lack old time powers. The crowd shouting "Kill the black bear." Johnson drove three blows to the stomach and Willard's left started the negro's mouth bleeding. The negro begged Willard to the ropes.

Round Ten. Johnson slow in coming from his corner. Willard scored two lefts to the face. Jesse is blocking better as the fight progresses. Johnson landed a left to Willard's ribs and shot a left in rapid succession to the body and jaw. Knocked Willard to ropes with right and left swing to the stomach. Hard right chop staggered Willard.

Round Eleven. Round 11.—Willard drove hard right to negro's mouth and got a hook to the body in return. Johnson smashed several swings. Johnson tried to rattle Willard by talking. Willard replied angrily. Johnson tapped the giant soldier at the bell.

Round Sixteen. Round 16.—Johnson ducked to head and the challenger was hard pressed. Willard drove swings into Johnson and negro drove challenger to ropes. Willard was unsteady when he went to his corner.

Round Eighteen. Round 18.—Both men slowed down and Johnson blocked Willard's leads easily. During the first minute there was not one punch landed that counted. The negro started a rally, but Willard landed two lefts to body.

Round Nineteen. Round 19.—Willard opened as the aggressor with rights to Johnson's jaw and face. The latter laughed and said, "Handed me some more." Willard did and Johnson stabbed rights and lefts while Willard landed hard blows.

Round Twenty. Round 20.—After one minute of feinting and posing, Johnson sent a left to Willard's body followed by a right to the head. Willard took advantage of an opening and landed straight to the champion's face. Johnson rushed and both men clinched. Johnson runs around the ring when they are parted, and was taking things easy at the bell.

Round Twenty-two. Round 22.—The fight becomes degenerated by slow work on the part of both men. Little punching is done. Willard tried to set the pace but Johnson blocked. He battered in the clinch and sent right and lefts to the champion's body. Johnson shows signs of being out of wind as the bell is sounded.

Round Twenty-three. Round 23.—Willard rushed at Johnson who held on until the referee was forced to break them. The challenger sent two lefts to Johnson's face, followed by two more to the face. Blows were more scarce and both men feinted as the tap of the gong sounded.

Round Twenty-four. Round 24.—The crowd yelled as Johnson stalled. Willard took every opportunity to get in a blow and was the aggressor all the way to the round. Johnson pushed the challenger in the same way as he did Jeffries at Reno, the crowd yelling at the negro with disappointment. Willard shot a left to the face, staggered Johnson as the round ended.

Berlin, April 5.—A report received in Berlin from Athens says the British battleship Lord Nelson, stranded inside the Dardanelles strait, has been destroyed by the fire of Turkish guns on shore. This information was given out today by the Overseas news agency.

A council of war held by British and French admirals, the Athens dispatch continued, decided to postpone the attempts to force the Dardanelles on account of insufficient strength of the landing expedition.

This dispatch contained the first intimation of the loss of the British battleship Lord Nelson. Her name has not been mentioned in any dispatches concerning the Dardanelles operations.

She was 410 feet long, displaced 16,500 tons and was built in 1906. She was armed with four 12-inch guns, ten 9.2-inch and thirteen 3-inch and carried a complement of 865 men.

Situation Unchanged. Berlin, April 5.—Included in reports given out today by the Overseas news agency says:

"Dispatches received in Berlin from Constantinople say there has been no change in the Dardanelles situation."

"The Russian fleet after its operations before the Bosphorus undertook March 30 a further attack on Bregli, a Black sea port in Asia Minor. Nine torpedoes were fired. Nine barges in the port were sunk and four houses on shore were damaged. There were no casualties."

Batteries of Kum Kaleh sank an enemy mine sweeper. The mine sweeper was sunk and a mine was exploded. The mine sweeper was attempting to approach the entrance to the Dardanelles."

Neither the Provident nor Vastochnaia are mentioned in latest shipping records.

Two Ships Torpedoed. London, April 5.—The Glasgow steamer Olive and the Russian bark Hermes were sunk by German submarines Sunday afternoon off the Isle of Wight. The crews of the two vessels took to their boats and were rescued by the British torpedo boat destroyers.

The loss of the Russian bark referred to in the above dispatch was reported yesterday. At this time her name was unknown. Fifteen members of the bark's crew got ashore safely. The Hermes was a three-masted bark of 973 tons.

Current maritime records do not contain reference to a vessel named Olive.

STORM ON ATLANTIC TAKES HEAVY TOLL; VESSELS ARE SUNK

Norfolk, Va., April 5.—Every possible effort from both land and sea was being made today to learn the fate of the Royal Dutch Indies company's steamer Prinz Mauritz, believed to have foundered off Hatteras with a loss of about fifty persons in the great storm that lashed the south Atlantic coast Saturday.

Coast guard cutters, warships and other craft searching for the Mauritz yesterday found no trace of the vessel near the spot where she sent out a distress call for aid, and it was feared crew and passengers shared the fate of fifteen of the crew of the tug Edward Luchenbach, drowned off Falsecape when the storm claimed a tug as a victim. No news of the Mauritz came early today from coast guard stations.

England is organizing women's volunteer reserves. Women are taught signaling, dispatch riding, telegraphing, motoring and camp cooking. It has been explained that the corps was for use only in the event of an invasion of England. It is not intended to use the women in aggressive fighting, but as the authorities state, "to arm them for their own defense in the event of a very different and justifiable." Four companies have already been formed, with Lady Londonderry as colonel.

London, April 5.—The English press sees in this episode a possibility of developments which may mean a flare-up in the smoldering Balkan situation. Advice reaching London by way of Rome, which has approached Hungary, but however assert that Bulgaria has agreed to give full satisfaction to Serbia. If this is true, probably the only sequel to the episode will be to draw from Bulgaria a definite statement as to the policy she proposes to pursue. All the Balkan nations as well as Italy are waiting the outcome with interest.

In other countries allied against Germany, Austria and Turkey, these recent developments are based upon German intrigues.

The Carpathian front is the quarter of which a decision of first importance is expected soon. London seems to be confident the Russians will break through into Hungary, but this has been predicted many times before. The Austrians are said to be throwing every available man into the fight at this point, so that a hard struggle will still be in prospect.

ANTI-GERMAN FUND IS STARTED IN GERMANY.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.] Berlin, April 5.—An anti-German fund is the latest and most unusual product of the war. It has been started by the central committee in charge of gifts to the soldiers, which has approached into Hungary, but in the empire to contribute at least one mark. The biggest banks in Berlin, with branches in every large city, have been made the depositories and agents.

The unique fund is the outcome of almost pitiful appeals from the soldiers in the east, increasing in number every day. Worse than hunger, thirst or sickness, they say, is the terrible scourge that has attacked them and against which they are powerless. Supplies of materials for combating the pest have been exhausted and at present there are no funds on hand for the purchase of more.

The appeal that has gone out is urgent. It is believed to be the largest campaign of its kind in history. Not only are the soldiers suffering terribly, but when invalided back home are apt to spread disease.

"Provocative reports in English and neutral newspapers that the crew of the German submarine which sank the Falaba laughed at the death struggles of the passengers and refused to assist them although having opportunity to do so are shameless lies."

BELOIT IN TRIBUTE TO LATE REV. WARD

Imposing Ceremonies and Great Gathering Mark Funeral of Priest—Body Passes Through City.

Three thousand people gathered this morning at St. Thomas' church at Beloit to pay tribute to the memory of the late Rev. M. J. Ward, for thirty-three years pastor of St. Thomas' congregation. At 9:30 o'clock forty visiting priests, Auxiliary Bishop Kressler of Milwaukee and Bishop Muldoon of Rockford entered the edifice to recite the litany of the dead. Solemn requiem high mass was celebrated at 10:30 by Auxiliary Bishop Kressler. Rev. Fr. Kelly of Minneapolis delivered the funeral oration.

One thousand friends of all denominations crowded the edifice and fully twice that many more gathered about the church.

Three special interurban cars brought the funeral cortege and the remains to this city where the party and body transferred to the Northwestern train for Eden, near Fond du Lac, where interment will be made. One hundred were in the party which accompanied the remains to the grave.

IN LAST SAD RITES FOR MISS DELANEY

Tribute to Patient Sufferer Paid This Morning—Interment at Mt. Olivet Cemetery.

Many friends gathered this morning at St. Patrick's church to attend the funeral of the late Miss Nellie Delaney. At 8 o'clock the Rev. Father William Mahoney celebrated solemn high mass and preached a fitting tribute to the young life which has been such a patient sufferer through many long weeks of illness. Members of the Young Ladies' Sodality, of which Miss Delaney was a member, attended in a body, and six members of this organization were the honorary pallbearers. The active pallbearers were John Ryan, Edward Joyce, William Murphy, Harry Caffey, Harry Seigel and Edward Doherty. The attending young ladies were the Misses Elizabeth Devins, Elizabeth Gagan, Mayme Fox, Katherine Dawson, Margaret Dillon and Anna Dolney.

Many beautiful floral designs were mute tributes of the esteem Miss Delaney held in the hearts of a great circle of friends and acquaintances. Interment was made at Mt. Olivet cemetery.

CABARET GIRL WANTS $25,000 OF PASTOR; HE WOODED HER TO GET "COLOR" FOR BOOK

Miss Florence Maxwell and Rev. I. B. Trout.

Miss Florence Maxwell, twenty-four-year-old cabaret singer of Chicago, claims that she has been courted for five years by the Rev. I. B. Trout, late pastor of the Brethren church of Lanark, Ill., fifty years old and a married man with several children. The pastor courted her under the name of N. R. Bennett and claimed he was a physician in the state insane asylum at Elgin, Ill., she says.

As a result of Trout's assertion that he accompanied the girl to beer gardens, cafes and other places of amusement to gain color for a book on the underworld, which he plans to publish, Miss Maxwell has announced that she will sue Trout for $25,000 for defamation of character.

In some districts of India the eastern parts of cemeteries are regarded as the most desirable. The choice is based on the belief that the dead in the eastern section will be the first to leap from their graves, brush the dust from their bones and proclaim their readiness to ascend.

All of Tomato Utilized.
Italy harvests about 23,000 acres of tomatoes yearly, and the waste amounts to practically nothing. The skins and seeds, formerly discarded, are now utilized, the former as stock feed and the latter as a source of oil. The crude oil is suitable for soap-making and for lamps, and the refined product is said to be edible.

DID SUITORS FIGHT BATTLE OVER THIS GIRL? ONE OF THEM GOT HURT, ANYWAY.

Miss Edith Bryson.

The beauty and charm of Miss Edith Bryson, Savannah's prettiest girl, are rumored to have been the cause of a recent pistol duel between two of her suitors. One of the young men in pursuit of her hand was shot, anyway. He says the affair was not a duel, but that he was shot without warning by a strange man.

THE UNIVERSITY.
From the hubbub that the heads of the university government are raising over the efforts of the legislature to curtail some of their expenses, to place the administration of financial affairs upon a firm foundation, and in other words to remove the state treasury from the university buildings to the state capital building where it belongs, you would think the university was the state. The old, old war cry, "It is the tory republicans. The Bourbons of the G. O. P. The stalwarts. Who seek to ruin the state," went well enough until former university regents entered the field and gave their impressions.

In another column will be found a letter from a former university regent, Frederick C. Thwaites. No one ever accused him of being a "stalwart," a "Bourbon," a "Tory." He has been a progressive of the progressive. He even out-progressed the progressives and was one of the staunchest of the Roosevelt progressives in the state. He says some pungent facts. The letter was written to Charles Pierce, president of the Home Rule and Taxpayers' league, and read at a hearing of the committee on the bill to change the state educational board of governors. Read it. It tells facts as they are viewed by a progressive and refutes the charge that the effort to bring the university into reasonable bounds is done with a view of crippling its efficiency.

Milwaukee Sentinel takes up the cudgels for the administration measure and says:
"The always picturesque and hard hitting Judge Levi Bancroft did not fail to make his usual commotion when he appeared before the assembly committee last Wednesday."

"The robust assertions of the Richard Center man to the general effect that the university administration has been 'in politics' to its neck, and that the board of regents is a mere 'rubber stamp' for that administration, are refuted to as the vapors of a 'reactionary,' and so forth."

"But when Judge Bancroft is corroborated at all points by such witnesses as former Regent Magnus Swenson and the eminently and honestly 'progressive' former Regent Frederick C. Thwaites, his straight fronted shoulders testify that he should make a deep dent in the respectability of the most 'progressive' committee man."

"Now 'board of regents' is a majestic term signifying regent, or ruling. Reduced to a 'rubber stamp,' the board is reduced to absurdity. Former Regent Howard said that, and got out. A board of regents composed entirely of Howards would be a dreadful obstacle to the (alleged) autocracy of a Van Hise."

"But in some important regards it would fit the legal public function of a board of regents. A governing body should do some real governing; whereas Mr. Swenson asseverates that the board took its orders from one man, and 'never even got the slightest help from the university authorities in any reforms which were proposed.'"

"Not a good system, certainly. The central board proposal may or may not be the proper remedy, and must be thoroughly weighed and canvassed before adoption, however modified."

"But some changes are surely in order to make the regent or governing body (whatever form may be determined on) a governing body in fact as well as in name."

academic and scholastic duties. On the whole, the political nexus between the university and the state legislature is—as the doctor said of the brothers—too close and ought to be cut. "Fancy the president of a great institution of learning impelled to peddle around like a ward politician in a contest for speaker of the assembly! Dr. Van Hise, of course, was looking out for his university appropriations, and he has, naturally, expansive and cooler ideas on that subject. But the incident related by Mr. Thwaites strikes us as illustrative of the sort of thing that is at the bottom of most of this university trouble, in its political aspect."

THE SPOILS TO THE WINNER.

War news from Europe of the past forty-eight hours would indicate that Bulgaria was about to cast its fortune with the Austrian-Hungarian-German-Turkish alliance. It is true and the report that a force of Bulgarians really invaded Serbia. It means that within the next few days new developments will be noted that may of necessity bring Roumania, Greece and Italy into the struggle. It is intimated that the Bulgarians have taken their stand, perhaps on a partial promise of a seaport on the Adriatic which if true would be directly opposed to Italy's policy of securing control of this sea and would also be considered dangerous to Greece's idea of who her immediate neighbors should be. Of course Serbia would suffer and the question now remains, will Italy and Greece longer remain inactive and will Roumania continue to watch the progress of the Bulgarians towards empire without objections?

To course the Wall Street Journal is prophetic. It can see but one side in the final settlement of affairs—that of a complete victory for the forces of Russia, England, France and Belgium. However, in speaking of Italy this paper says:

"Italia Irredenta" constitutes the old province of Trent in Tirol (not 'the Tirol, please) which is not Italian in the higher Alps, although it is so in a large part of the province and by Switzerland and Italy; and Trieste with the shore of the northern Adriatic down to Fiume. These two cities, both important ports, and indeed more important than any Italy possesses on her eastern coast, including Brindisi, are preponderantly Italian. Outside the cities the population is almost wholly Slav. It is unpleasant to taste in the attitude of Italy during this war. It may not be true that her king has a large investment in the stock of the Krupp company in Germany. But as a French writer luminously observes, she is preparing to come heroically to the rescue of the victors. There is almost a favor of 'Black Hand' in the Italian attitude towards Austria. Italy is waiting for results, and it is quite conceivable that between two stools she may fall to the ground."

"There is one implication in the war, to which even our own administration should direct its mind. It is that the terms of peace will be settled by the people who have taken part in the fighting, with little or no consultation with neutrals. The fighters, at least, are in deadly earnest. Italy's ambition is not likely to sway the peace terms. She may, or may not, secure some concessions from Austria. Germany seems willing to bargain with that unfortunate nation's assets, having something to gain and nothing to lose."

"But if the allies are victorious, the Italian feelings in the matter are not at all likely to be considered. To concede to Italy, Trieste and Fiume, on the assumption that her national interest is bound up in making the Adriatic an Italian lake, would be, in effect, to create a condition like that in the Black Sea in the past century. It would constitute an everlasting cause of quarrel. The alleged 'Venetian settlements' on the eastern shore of the Adriatic do not extend to the territory behind them, and Italian control would deny to a large and victorious Slav population direct access to the sea."

"Italy has played her cards dexterously enough so far. But if she wishes to make any gain out of the partition of Turkey or Austria, she will have to come out squarely, and take one side or the other. The war is not being waged for the benefit of neutrals, as we have ourselves found out, to our cost. Under which lord, Bexonian? Speak, or die!"

The recall of the American regular army officers who were acting as observers in Germany, is said to be due to the spread of the anti-American spirit throughout that empire. For a nation that has been neutral thus far this is amazing but not to be wondered at by the milk and water state papers that have crossed the Atlantic emanating from the state department.

At a recent hearing before a legislative committee considering the women's suffrage measure, Attorney Robert Wild of Milwaukee, representing the German Alliance in protest to the passage of the bill made the significant statement that not fifty per cent of the members of the German-American Alliance are citizens of the United States, yet they would dictate the policy of the government.

The Pawamo Editor Says:
Not long ago we were offered the golden opportunity to buy the controlling interest in a big town newspaper for $5,000. We presume that being an editor where you have several thousand readers is just "too good" for anything but when it comes to newspapers we feel like the country boy that wrote in to the manufacturers to find out what a threshing machine would cost him and a threshing machine would cost him one for $2,000 he wrote back and said: "You darned fool. If I had $2,000 what would I want with a threshing engine?"

Some Suggestions.
Now that "I Didn't Raise My Boy to be a Soldier" has made a great hit in the music halls, why not try the following:

"I Didn't Raise My Auto to Be a Jitney Bus."
"I Didn't Raise My Son to Be a Lawyer."

"I Didn't Raise My Daughter to Be a Fox Trotter."
"I Didn't Raise My Spring Onion to Be a Dockweed."

"I Didn't Raise My Wife to Be a Professional Clubwoman."
"I Didn't Raise My Chauffeur to Be a Son-in-Law."

"I Didn't Raise My Waiter to Be a Millionaire."
"I Didn't Raise My Hired Girl to Be a Despot."

"I Didn't Raise My Boy to Be a Dancing Teacher."
"I Didn't Raise My Salary Because I Couldn't."

It is "Some" Cemetery.
From "Hanover-Horton Local" (Michigan) "D. C. Anson has ordered a 15 by 20 foot heavy granite to be used in the Horton cemetery when graves are dug to put dirt on. The lawn will be left clean and sod put back on as it came out leaving everything neat when grave is filled. Dayton has a burial outfit that opens the eyes of the city people when they come to the Horton cemetery. It's strictly up-to-date."

A More Guess
They might at least put a pair of stockings on that there fiver of Diana, observed Mrs. Spriggins at the Art Museum.
"She wouldn't be Diana if she had stockings on," suggested her city nephew, who was showing her around.
"Who would she be?"
"Hosanna, I guess."

Why Not Avoid Regrets?
Suppose, after living in your new home awhile you should "wish you had"
—used better materials in places;
—hardwood instead of soft wood finish in some rooms;
—stairways less steep and tiring;
—a built-in buffet that would have saved valuable space;
—and that you had done other things a different way.
Then you would realize what real regrets are—how they "smart."
One of the most disappointing things in this world is an unsatisfactory house. It does not measure up to your ideas and ideals—it hurts your pride—it costs you a lot of money—and changes are expensive. It stares you in the face every day. To avoid such disappointment

Whitman the Prophet. Walt Whitman was a prophet who, like so many of his breed, called aloud before his time had ripened, a poet whose fruit for America lies dimly in the future. Undismayed, buoyant with fierce conviction and unshakable faith, he moved amid the thunders of ruin menacing the republic and the later insidious threats of its decay, the bard of manhood, the chanter of democracy, the laureate of labor.—North American Review.

MINOR IS BEFORE MUNICIPAL COURT

James Brennan, Aged Nineteen, Paroled Out for Thirty Days—

Two Floaters Sentenced. James Brennan, aged 19 years, was arraigned before Judge H. L. Maxwell in the police court on the charge of being intoxicated on Saturday night. The court inquired as to the minor where he obtained the liquor, but as usual, the efforts were unrewarded and no evidence was obtained against any saloon keeper. Brennan declaring obtaining the intoxicants through unknown friends.

The minor pleaded guilty to the warrant and signed the pledge for a period of three years. He was paroled out by Judge Maxwell to H. Loomis of Evansville for a period of thirty days. Brennan was arrested Saturday night following trouble in a West Milwaukee street saloon.

Given Forty Days. Thomas Keller came back and got forty days in jail for being drunk and disorderly on Saturday night. Saturday morning Keller was in the court, was up in court for drunkenness, but his oratory secured his release from sentence on his promise to get out of town within a half an hour.

Keller was sent only as far as an Academy street saloon and that night was picked up by the police for too much "sulphur" language in the Chicago and Northwestern station. On his "come-back" appearance, his eloquent plea resulted in a ten day flat term, a fine of twenty-five dollars and costs or thirty days additional.

"I'll add more to it, if you don't quit that work story," replied the court.

Another Transient. On Wall street late Saturday night near the Railroad Hotel, pedestrians heard loud cursing, yelling and "darn" that sent a thrill through all the streets. When the police arrived they found Joe Billew, transient, lying on a street pile shouting at the top of his voice. He drew ten dollars or fifteen days. He took the fifteen days.

CONCRETE STREETS

City Officials to Visit Sheboygan, Plymouth and Fond du Lac on Wednesday This Week.

On Wednesday Mayor James A. Fathens, Councilman Roy Cummings and P. J. Goodman and City Engineer V. E. McDermott, will visit Sheboygan, Plymouth and Fond du Lac for the purpose of inspecting concrete streets of the three cities with a view of obtaining first hand information of the success of these streets in adopting paving plans in Janesville.

In Sheboygan many miles of concrete have been laid on both traffic and residential streets and concrete have been down for a period of three to six years. The Janesville officials seek to obtain estimates of the construction cost, the maintenance and how the concrete wears.

In Fond du Lac the concrete pavements have been down for a long period and a good test can be made of their values. The small city of Plymouth has been progressive in laying permanent streets and have a number of miles of concrete and are putting several miles more in this year.

The council here have not decided on the type of pavement to be laid either on South Franklin street or on Milton avenue, north from St. Mary's avenue to the city limits. A petition has been received from South Franklin street residents favoring macadam, but some objection is raised against the laying of this type on a street where there is a canal.

The officials expect to return on Thursday.

EXPECT LIGHT VOTE

AT POLLS TOMORROW

Voting Machines Installed and Inspected at Polling Places for Election Tuesday.

Voting machines have been installed in the five ward polling places and were inspected this afternoon, for the complete results on the election Tuesday, tomorrow from six in the morning until eight in the evening.

City Clerk J. P. Hammarlund has furnished the election clerks and inspectors with the election returns blanks. It is expected that the returns will be in a few minutes after eight as it takes but a few minutes to learn the complete results on the machines. A light vote is certain, owing to the lack of interest in the most of the wards, where there is no competition for the minor offices.

SIR KNIGHTS ENJOY PRELATE'S ADDRESS

Members of Janesville Commandery Attend Baptist Church and Hear Easter Message by Matheson.

Members of Janesville Commandery No. 12, Knights Templar, and Janesville Chapter No. 69, Order of Eastern Star, attended Easter services Sunday morning at the Baptist church where Sir Knight Alexander E. Matheson, prelate of the order, delivered a most interesting and inspiring address.

Joseph Chalmers Hazen, led the Sir Knights in their Easter devotions.

"When I think of Christ, I think of him as a strong, virile man," said Mr. Matheson, "and he was a man of body, staunch and rugged; a man with a wonderful personality, but also a man in whom the emphasis was upon the spiritual, the ideal, the eternal."

Early in his career he underwent a trio of tests and temptations, winning over them a glorious victory. Thus strengthened and prepared, he was ready for his great life of service and sacrifice, and he was hard-pressed at times, but always victorious. His life is our great inspiration and example. Christ was a man who never failed. He always overcame.

"Christ's resurrection," Mr. Matheson went on to say, "was the supreme event of His life. Because of His victory, His victory over death and the grave, struggling humanity has wonderful and inspiring hope. Because of it a great goal is opened up for us, and we are willing to follow out Christ's teachings."

Mr. Matheson touched briefly on the present strife in Europe, noting the tendency of nations to pass on, leaving their mantle to fall on more worthy shoulders. Citizens of the United States, he said, lived in the hope that their nation was not destined to crumble and decay, but through the inspiration of Christ's teachings would be able to stand on their feet, leading to the spread of Christian teachings into every part of the world.

CAR ESCAPES TRAIN BUT STRIKES POST

Street Car Coming Down Academy Street Jumps Track at Crossing and Runs Into Telephone Pole.

Passengers on street car No. 21 coming down North Academy street early this morning had the exciting experience of being in a near wreck when the car jumped the track just before the St. Paul crossing, leading to the Green warehouse, bumped along thirty feet of the street and ended its jolting fight against a telephone post on the east side of the street.

There were six people on the car and none suffered injury or was the car damaged to any extent. In coming across the belt line Motorman Cuts opened the speed of the car to escape a St. Paul locomotive that was coming up the track leading to the Green warehouse, bumped along thirty feet of the street and ended its jolting fight against a telephone post on the east side of the street.

Trouble was experienced in putting the car back on the tracks this morning by the company's employees, as it was almost at right angles across the street.

MRS. MARY OSGOOD ANSWERS LAST CALL

Widow of Late George Osgood Expires Sunday Morning at Her Home Following Stroke of Paralysis.

Mrs. Mary Luella Osgood, widow of the late George Osgood, passed peacefully away at her home on South Jackson street at 6:45 o'clock on Sunday morning, April 4th.

Mrs. Osgood survived her husband but a little less than one year, his death having occurred on May 25, 1914.

Mary Luella Dudley was born at Concord, N. H., in July, 1850, being the only child of Mr. and Mrs. D. A. Dudley. Her girlhood was spent at her father's home in Concord until she reached womanhood, when she was married to Mr. George W. Osgood of Danbury, N. H., in September, 1867. This union was the beginning of a happy home relationship extending over nearly half a century.

Mrs. Osgood came to Wisconsin with her husband in 1870 and settled on a farm in the town of Harmony, Wisconsin, where they lived for eleven years. She moved to Janesville in 1881 with Mr. Osgood and resided here until death claimed her on Sunday morning of this week.

Mrs. Osgood was an ideal home maker. Her devotion to her home was expressed in a life long service of loving devotion to its duties and responsibilities. Her greatest joy was in ministering to her husband's needs with true wife's devotion.

In a public capacity Mrs. Osgood was broad in her sympathies and interested. She was a member of the Daughters of the American Revolution, and was deeply interested in the patriotic service which this organization fosters.

Her interest in the Art League was perhaps her closest attachment. She loved its aims and purposes and devoted herself to its work. In her death this organization loses one of its most loyal members.

The Home Economics club, though one of the newer organizations, received her interest and support. She was one of its founders and served as its president for one term.

Mrs. Osgood's interest in religion was small by her activity in the various organizations of the Congregational church. She was a regular attendant at the church services and the pastor, Mr. Ewing, will conduct the funeral services at the home on Jackson street on Tuesday at 2:30 p. m.

MRS. THERESA OLSON TELLS OF VOYAGE FROM NORWAY TO UNITED STATES

Mrs. Theresa Olson, formerly Miss Theresa Bahr of this city, and two children, Dorothy and Earl, who now make their home in Norway, arrived here last evening on a visit to her parents, Mr. and Mrs. William Olson of Pearl street. In speaking of her voyage, she said everything went all right with one exception. The steamer Christianafjord, on which she was a passenger, on her voyage to Norway from this country, was chased by the English but escaped. On her return trip to the United States, she was held up one night as a penalty by the British ships and kept going in a circle all that time. The next morning she was let go. She says that floating in mid-ocean, on which she was a passenger, was a very numerous, but fortunately the ship was on did not strike any.

Postmaster J. J. Cunningham this morning received a letter from Sedgwick Rice, commandant of the federal district of Kansas, addressed to "All the Employers of Labor of Rock County." The note is to the effect that a large number of men discharged each month from the institution request that work be found for them. Employers wishing labor of this nature should communicate with Postmaster Cunningham.

SIDE TALKS

BY RUTH CAMERON

"SALTED NUT" PEOPLE

"She's one of those people that arouse and interest you and don't ever bore you," said Molly, the little stenographer lady who was explaining her liking for one of her friends.

"She's not at all good looking," said the author's wife, who had started the conversation.

"No," said Molly, "and she isn't the kind who say nice things, either. I'll tell you what she's like—salted nuts."

"Salted Nuts" the Author's Wife is Surprised

"There's the author's wife with equal parts of exclamation and inquiry in her tone.

"Yes," said Molly firmly. "Don't you know, some people are like candy, awfully sweet and nice but you get tired of them so quickly. Salted nuts are different. They're kind of fascinating and you can keep on eating them almost indefinitely without getting tired of them—and that's what she's like."

"Right-Oh, Molly," said the author, who had come in during this last remark. "That's a very good characterization. Give us some more."

Champagne and Water People

"What about champagne people?" put in the wants-to-be-cynic. "The kind that sparkle, the kind that exhilarate you and make you think they're the only thing that makes life worth living at night, but leave you with a bad taste for every day living next morning."

"They're the antipodes to water people, aren't they?" said the author.

"Water's one of those things that you don't appreciate because you have plenty of it, but miss it like all outdoors when you can't get it. I guess we all have met people like that in our lives."

"Beefsteak people are a kind I wish there were more of," said the cynic. "The plain, wholesome, hearty folks that put you on good terms with life in a healthy way. You know the kind I mean, like Al Hastings, wholesome and straight and clean, no frills and no need of any."

"You know what they say about olives?" from Molly. "That you have to learn to like them but if you once get the taste, you'll never lose it. I know people like that that it takes you a long while to appreciate but you like them better than ordinary folks once you get the taste."

The Cynic Grows Serious

"So do I," said the cynic, with what appeared on the surface to be unnecessary fervor in his voice.

"Do stop talking such nonsense," said the author's wife. "You people never know when to stop when you get started."

"It wasn't nonsense," said the cynic. "Was it, Molly?"

"I don't know," said Molly, strangely on the fire.

Questions and Answers

Question.—My little daughter has a "crush" on a girl several years older. She saves her pocket money to buy her presents, worships her from a distance, and thinks all she does is perfect. What shall I do? Do you think it is a bad thing?

Answer.—That depends somewhat on the character of the girl she admires. It does none of us any harm to admire that which is admirable, and it inspires a humility and an upward striving which is good for the soul. All the sweet and sudden passion of youth for greatness in its elders never did any harm. Try to become acquainted with the object of this devotion. That is the best step you can take.

tress, at the changes the old lady rung on Miss Rudolph's name.

"Thank you, mother, dear, for telling me," she said, rising and kissing her. "I'll try and manage him."

MRS. GAMBLE KISSES HER BABES FAREWELL

"Suicide Florence" Promises to be Model Prisoner For Sake of Three Little Ones.

Three pretty little children have broken down "Suicide Florence" Gamble's asserted determination to commit suicide rather than serve a term of eighteen months in a federal prison, imposed after she had pleaded "guilty" to a charge of violating postal laws by running a matrimonial bureau.

After she had been convicted, "Suicide Florence" tearfully begged to be allowed to see the children found with her on a farm near Beloit when she was arrested several weeks ago. One of them is her own child. The others she had obtained from institutions.

When her husband brought the children to the jail, in Milwaukee, she kissed and hugged them; first Rose, age 6, her own child, then "Tody," aged 3, and Leo, aged 11 months, called the "22 baby" because Mrs. Gamble says she got him from a Milwaukee institution, without formally adopting him, by paying the woman head of the institution $2. With the "22 baby" in her arms and the others at her knee, she made her promise.

"I'm going to be as good as any prisoner they have so that I can get out as quickly as possible and come back to the babies," she said. "They are my consolation. They are the best thing in my life. If they are taken away from me no one can tell what will become of me."

Then she sent a plea to the authorities to give back the children to her when she has served her term. The matter will not be decided until she is released. Rose and Tody went to the House of the Good Shepherd and Leo to St. Vincent's Orphan asylum.

"When I got sick of these boobies that fell for my game, Mrs. Gamble said, 'I'd go to those little babes and mother them and forget all about the fool men.'"

CONGRESS OF WOMEN AROUSING INTEREST

Expect Delegates From All Parts of The World To Discuss Position Of Women To Present War.

The Hague, April 5.—(Correspondence of The Associated Press)—The Associated Press—The International Congress of Women to be held here early in April is arousing the greatest interest and it is hoped by the organizing committee that delegates will be present from nearly all the countries in the world, in order to discuss the position of women as a result of the war and the possibility of placing them in a better situation in the future.

The questions to be discussed include:

(1)—A resolution with a view to bringing about an armistice in order to discuss peace.

(2)—The formation of an international court of arbitration to discuss questions arising between nations before they proceed to hostilities.

(3)—The drafting of an international rule compelling all nations to come before this court and providing at the same time for international action any country taking up arms without applying to the court.

(4)—The control of foreign politics by the people of a nation instead of by groups or parties.

(5)—A resolution forbidding the annexation of any territory without the consent of the men and women forming the population of the territory itself.

(6)—A resolution declaring war an access of insanity brought about by suggestion which leads people to destroy in a short time what it has taken centuries to build up.

(7)—A motion declaring women responsible for war because they do not exercise their undoubted influence to prevent it and calling on them to claim full political rights so that they may be able to bring that influence properly to bear.

(8)—A motion calling attention to the sufferings of women brought about by the war.

PHILADELPHIA BEAUTY TO WED SOON

Miss Cordelia Drexel Biddle.

One of the most notable weddings of the spring season will take place in Philadelphia on April 23, when Miss Cordelia Drexel Biddle, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Drexel Biddle, will become the bride of Mr. Angier B. Duke of New York. Miss Biddle, who is only seventeen, inherits her father's love of athletics. She was not to have made her debut for several seasons to come, but owing to the war in Europe her plans for two years of study abroad were upset and she was included in the season's list of "buds" at the last moment.

Household Hints

WORTH KNOWING

To Use Silk Rag—Make portieres. Cut silk rag (or scraps of silk gathered in sewing room) in strips like for making rag rugs. Sew together and wind in balls. Mix the colors so it will have a bit and miss appearance after it is woven. Anyone that weaves rugs will weave them. Make body of portieres with the mixed colors; about half yard from the bottom make a stripe of some plain color. Sew the plain colors in separate balls. Finish one edge and across bottom with a short fringe or ball trimming (can buy it at any art or trimming store), for body when finished.

To Use Silk Pieces—You can use them for making covers for couch pillows. Those not suitable to piece cut into narrow strips like carpet rags; sew them together and make a rug; knit on large wooden needles, casting on fifty-six stitches. Knit two sides and sew together; bright and durable.

Burnt Cure—Soak foot ten or fifteen minutes in water with color water as it cools, then apply absorbent cotton well with equal parts of spirits of camphor and turpentine mixed. Do this on retiring at night, next morning pour some of the mixture on foot after you have your stockings on. Wear a narrow soles shoe, but with a full upper. This will cure, if not too long standing, and relieve you if it is.

UP-TO-DATE RECIPES

Ham—Take a whole ham; leave skin on and steam four hours (always put it in the water, butter, invert a colander to raise it out of the water). Take the thick skin off while hot and score the fat in squares. Place a whole egg in each square. But a cup of light brown sugar all over it, then pour a cup of mild vinegar over that. Bake one hour in moderate oven, basting frequently. This is the most delicious ham, either hot or cold.

Baby Chanticleer Salad—Make nest on a flat platter, from finely cut cabbage; sprinkle pepper, salt and nut meats over cabbage. Take hard-boiled eggs, cut each in half, place in a soft cream, then dip heads in oil to the bodies; with a silver knife smooth down the joined edge. Join heads to small end of egg. Use apple seeds for eyes, cabbage leaf for wings, and of toothpick for bill. Place little chicks in cabbage nest and set away to chill. When ready to serve, pour salad dressing over. If wanted for a centerpiece, garnish with lettuce leaves from an under dish.

Asparagus Omelet—Boil about 12 heads asparagus and cut green ends, when tender, into short pieces. Mix with two well-beaten eggs, adding pinch of salt, and butter. Melt tablespoon butter in omelet pan, pour in mixture, stir till it thickens over fire, then fold it nicely over and serve.

Bran Coffee—Delicious and inexpensive pure food drink. Take two qts. bran, one heaping tablespoon salt, one heaping tablespoon oil, one cup baking molasses. Mix thoroughly, put in large pan, place in moderately hot oven. Stir occasionally and remove when it is nicely browned. Then stir two well-beaten eggs, again mixing thoroughly. Leave until dry. Put in.

HOW SHE ENDED TEN YEARS OF SKIN-TORTURE

Oct. 23, 1914.—"I had eczema on my face for ten years. Little red pimples formed in a small spot on my chin and then spread all over my face. They itched and burned me awfully. It was certainly embarrassing to me, and I would not go amongst people. I tried almost every remedy and treatment that could be used for this trouble, but nothing did me any good. I used Resinol Ointment and Resinol Soap, and was relieved in a day or two. In one month I was cured. This was six months ago and the trouble has never returned."—(Signed) Mrs. C. G. Roberts, Weatherford, Okla.

The Resinol treatment speedily heals eczema, rashes, ringworm, and other eruptions, and clears away disfiguring pimples and blackheads, even when other treatments prove worse than useless. Doctors have prescribed Resinol Ointment and Resinol Soap for eighteen years, and all druggists sell them.

EIGHTEEN BRITISH SHIPS SOLD OUT OF THE NAVY.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

London, April 5.—Eighteen vessels were sold out of the British navy last year, most of them going to the scrap heap. Among them were four capital ships which cost nearly five million dollars apiece, and three submarines belonging to the 1903 naval program.

The four big ships, dating from about twenty years ago, were the Imperieuse, Royal Oak, Royal Sovereign, and Ramillies. The four, which cost $16,400,000 to build, were knocked down for a total of $770,000.

The boat that brought the best price, proportionately, was the ancient Camel, built in 1866. It originally cost $62,000 and was sold after nearly fifty years' service, for $8,000.

The three submarines, which cost $200,000 each, brought less than $2,000 apiece at auction, indicating that the submarine not only becomes absolutely more rapidly than other craft, but is also worth almost nothing, comparatively, as old iron.

Glimpses of Married Life

BY MRS. EVA LEONARD

Relations between Dick and his mother were noticeably strained at supper that evening and the old lady went early to bed.

Nell in a low voice as soon as they were alone. "Oh, she looks it upon herself, to meddle with my affairs, and I told her where to get out of it. That's all. She may as well understand, first as last, that I am grown."

"What did she say?" asked Nell.

"What she said does not matter. It's the fact that she interfered with me that I resented. And Nell knew that her quest for knowledge was fruitless for that time."

After Dick went to work the next morning the women did up the breakfast, and then took their sewing chairs out on the lawn under a fine old apple tree. The air was not still, but an occasional meadow lark could be heard piping his clear sweet notes in the nearby field.

"Did Richard say anything about my going over to the office," asked Madam Morton finally, peering over her glasses at Nell.

"No," was the brief response. Nell paused in her sewing and looked inquiringly at her mother-in-law.

"I hoped you need not know anything of the matter, but Richard got on one of his obstinate streaks, and when he does he's like a balky horse. He wouldn't stir if you built a fire under him." Nell was listening intently.

"Yesterday that doctor's wife called while you were away and had a choice morsel of gossip she was rolling under her tongue, about Richard and that fastidious stenographer. I guess she thought she had chosen the wrong one to confide in," she was smiling grimly.

"She concluded she had landed in a bed of nettles and went away rubbing her wounds."

A sharp spasm of pain crossed Nell's face, and was noted by the keen eyes back of the spectacles.

"What did she say?" asked Nell faintly.

"Oh, that there was talk about them because they were so much together. My private opinion is that if there is talk she started it and kept it going, and that's neither here nor there. I decided to tell Richard, hoping he'd be sensible enough to stop the buzzing and so save trouble all around, but he chose to be a fool, and he knows how to do it to perfection when he sets his mind."

Nell was too busy winking back her tears to champion the cause of the absent.

"I warned the putty faced girl as honest as if he had brains to take in what I said, but I might as well have saved my breath to blow my porridge."

Nell wiped her eyes while stooping to pick up the shears from the ground, but found no voice to reply.

"You seem to know how to manage Richard pretty well. I thought you ought to know. Perhaps you do already. I remember that horner said she had caught Richard, hoping he'd be sensible enough to stop the buzzing and so save trouble all around, but he chose to be a fool, and he knows how to do it to perfection when he sets his mind."

"Oh, Dick means no harm; he represents being talked about and—"

"Not liking the gossip, he does everything to discourage the amount," said Madam Morton with scorn. "He'll get his fill of the smarting dose. It's like cutting off his nose to spite his face. I thought maybe if you knew which way the wind blew you could trim your sails and two to reply."

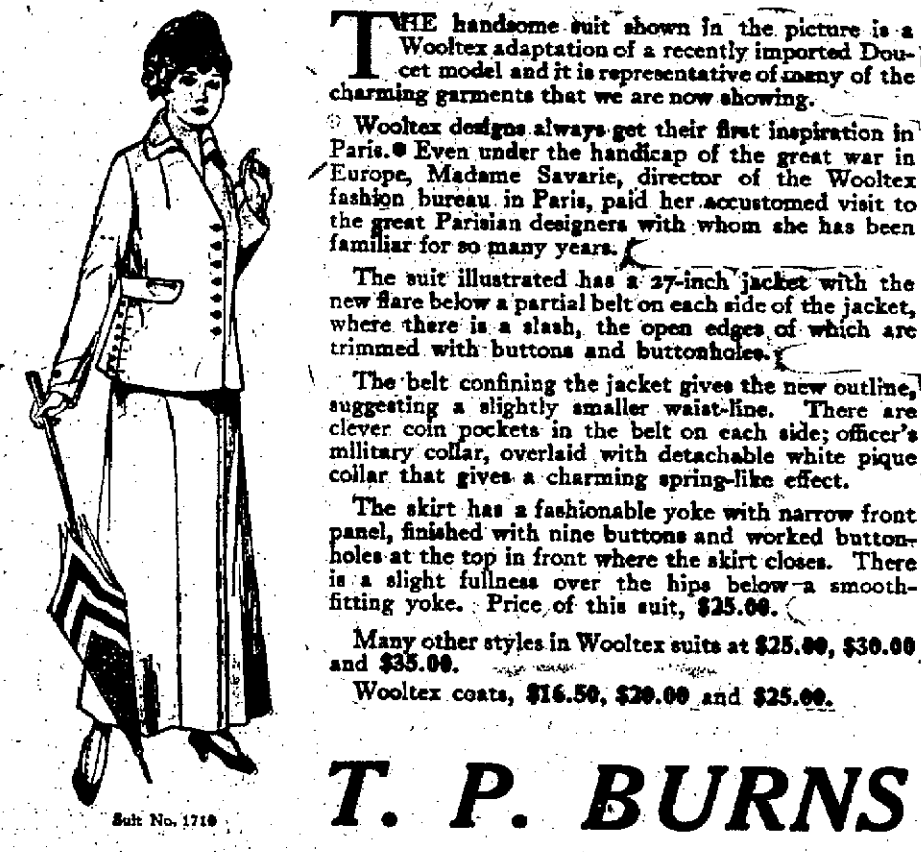

Most men have to be managed. Thank the Lord, I married a sane man; I don't have to beat about the bush and pretend I am going north to get him headed south. I never could have done it."

Nell was openly wiping her eyes by this time.

"There, Nell, don't you care. Richard may be a fool, but he's no knave. He don't care for Miss Feather-top."

Nell laughed in spite of her distress.

Smart Originality of Design Expresses Parisian Influence in these Wooltex Tailored Coats and Suits

Suit No. 1718

The handsome suit shown in the picture is a Wooltex adaptation of a recently imported Doucet model and it is representative of many of the charming garments that we are now showing.

Wooltex designs always get their first inspiration in Paris. Even under the handicap of the great war in Europe, Madame Savaris, director of the Wooltex fashion bureau in Paris, paid her accustomed visit to the great Parisian designers with whom she has been familiar for so many years.

The suit illustrated has a 27-inch jacket with the new flare below a partial belt on each side of the jacket, where there is a slash, the open edges of which are trimmed with buttons and buttonholes.

The belt confining the jacket gives the new outline, suggesting a slightly smaller waist-line. There are clever coin pockets in the belt on each side; officer's military collar, overlaid with detachable white pique collar that gives a charming spring-like effect.

The skirt has a fashionable yoke with narrow front panel, finished with nine buttons and worked buttonholes at the top in front where the skirt closes. There is a slight fullness over the hips below a smooth-fitting yoke. Price of this suit, $25.00.

Many other styles in Wooltex suits at $25.00, $30.00 and $35.00.

Wooltex coats, $16.50, $20.00 and $25.00.

rated him? Oh, how feeble the word is! Hate! There should be a word that strikes more terror to the soul than that one. But wait! You shall know everything. You shall have the story from the beginning. There is much to tell and there will be consolation—say, triumph for you in the story I shall tell. First, let me say this to you: When I came here I did not know that there was a Lydia Desmond. I would have hurt that poor girl, but it would not have been a lasting pain. In my plans, after I came to know her, there grew a beautiful alternative through which she should know great happiness. Oh, I have planned well and carefully, but I was ruthless. I would have crushed her with my rather than to have failed. But it is all a dream that has passed and I am awake. It was the most cruel but the most magnificent dream—ah, but I dare not think of it. As I stand here before you now, Frederic, I am shorn of all my power. I could not strike him as I might have done a month ago. Even as I was cursing him but a moment ago I realized that I could not have gone on with the game. Even as I begged you to take your revenge, I knew that it was not myself who urged, but the thing that was having its death struggle within me.

"Go on. Tell me. Why do you stop?"

She was glancing fearfully toward the Hindu's door. "There is one man in this house who knows. He reads my every thought. He does not know all, but he knows me. He has known from the beginning that I was not to be trusted. That man is never out of my thoughts. I fear him, Frederic—I fear him as I fear death. If he had not been here, I believe I should have dared anything. I could have taken you away with me, months ago. But he worked his spell and I was afraid. I faltered. He knew that I was afraid, for he spoke to me one day of the beautiful serpents in his land that were cowards in spite of the death they could deal with one flash of their fangs. You were intoxicated. I am a thing of beauty. I can charm as they—

"God knows that is true," he said hoarsely.

"But enough of that! I was stricken with my own poison. Go to the door! See if he is there. I fear—"

"No one is near," said he, after striding swiftly to both doors, listening at one and peering out through the other.

"You will have to go away, Frederic. I shall have to go. But we shall not go together. In my room I have kept hidden the sum of ten thousand dollars, waiting for the day to come when I should use it to complete the game I have played. I knew that you would have no money of your own. I was prepared even for that. Look again! See if anyone is there? I feel—I feel that someone is near us. Look, I say."

He obeyed. "See! There is no one near." He held open the door to the hall. "You must speak quickly. I am to leave this house in an hour. I was given the hour."

"Ah, I can see by your face that you hate him! It is well. That is something. It is but little, I know, after I have wished for—but it is something for me to treasure—something for me to take back with me to the sacred little spot in this beastly world of men and women."

"You are the most incomprehensible!"

"Am I not beautiful, Frederic? Tell me!" She came quite close to him.

"You are the most beautiful woman in all the world," he said absently.

"And I have wasted all my beauty—I have lent it to unloveliness and it has not been destroyed! It is still with me, is it not? I have not lost it in—"

"You are beautiful beyond words—beyond anything I have ever imagined," said he, suddenly passing his hand over his brow.

"You would have loved me if it had not been for Lydia?"

"I couldn't have helped myself. I—I fear I—faltering in my— Good God, are you still trying to tempt me? Are you still asking me to go away with you?"

A hoarse cry came from the doorway behind them—a cry of pain and anger that struck terror to their souls.

They had not heard his approach.

CHAPTER XXVII.

The Shot That Failed.

Transfixed, they watched him take two or three steps into the room. At his back was the swarthy Hindu, his eyes gleaming like coals of fire in the shadowy light.

"James!" fell tremulously from the lips of Yvonne. She swayed toward him as Ranjab grasped his arm from behind. Frederick saw the flash of something bright as it passed from the brown hand to the white one. He did not at once comprehend.

"It happened once," came hoarsely from the throat of James Brood. "It shall not happen again. Thank you, Ranjab."

Then Frederic knew! The Hindu had slipped a revolver into his master's hand!

"It gives me great pleasure, Yvonne, to relieve you of that damned, rotten, worthless thing you call your life."

As he raised his arm, Frederic sprang forward with a shout of horror. Scarcely realizing what he did, he hurled Yvonne violently to one side.

It was all over in the twinkling of an eye. There was a flash, the crash of an explosion, a puff of smoke and the smell of burnt powder.

Frederic stood perfectly still for an instant, facing the soft cloud that rose from the pistol barrel, an expression of vague amazement in his face. Then his hand went uncertainly to his breast.

Already James Brood had seen the red blotch that spread with incredible swiftness—blood—red against the snowy white of the broad shirt bosom. Glaring with wide-open eyes at the horrid spot, he stood there with the pistol still levelled in a petrified hand.

"Good God, father, you've—why, you've—" struggled from Frederic's writhing lips, and then his knees sagged; an instant later they gave way with a rush and he dropped heavily to the floor.

There was not a sound in the room. Suddenly Brood made a movement quick and spasmodic. At the same instant Ranjab flung himself forward and grasped his master's arm.

He had turned the revolver upon himself! The muzzle was almost at his temple when the Hindu seized his hand in a grip of iron.

"Sahib! Sahib!" he hissed. "What would you do? Wrenching the weapon from the stiff, unresisting fingers, he hurled it across the room.

"My God!" groaned Brood. His tall body swayed forward, but his legs refused to carry him. The Hindu caught him as he was sinking limply to his knees. With a tremendous effort of the will, Brood succeeded in conquering the black unconsciousness that was assailing him. He straightened up to his full height, and with trembling fingers pointed to the prostrate figure on the floor. "The pistol, Ranjab! Where is it? Give it me! Man, man, can I live after that? I have killed my son—my own son! Quick, man!"

"Sahib!" cried the Hindu, wringing his hands. "I cannot! I cannot!"

"I command you! The pistol!"

Without a word the Hindu, fatalist, slave, pagan that he was, turned to do his master's bidding. It was not for him to say nay, it was not for him to oppose the will of the master, but to obey.

All this time, Yvonne was crouching against the table, her horrified gaze upon the great red blotch that grew to terrible proportions as she watched. She had not moved, she had not breathed, she had not taken her hands from her ears where she had placed them at the sound of the explosion.

"Blood! It is blood!" she moaned, and for the first time since the shot was fired her husband glanced at the one for whom the bullet was intended.

An expression of incredulity leaped into his face, as if he could not believe his senses. She was alive and unharmed! His bullet had not touched her. His brain flumbled for the explanation of this miracle.

"Blood!" she wailed again, a long, shuddering word that came not from her lips but from the very depths of her terror-stricken soul.

Slowly Brood's mind worked out of the maze. His shot had gone straight, but Frederic himself had leaped into its path to save this miserable creature who would have damned his soul if life had been spared to him.

Slowly Brood's mind worked out of the maze. His shot had gone straight, but Frederic himself had leaped into its path to save this miserable creature who would have damned his soul if life had been spared to him.

Ranjab crawled to his side, his eyes covered with one arm, the other extended. Blindly the master felt for the pistol, not once removing his eyes from the pallid figure against the table. His fingers closed upon the weapon. Then the Hindu looked up, warned by the strange voice that spoke to him from the mind of his master. He saw the arm slowly extend itself with a sinister hand directed straight at the unconscious figure of the woman. This time Brood was making sure of his aim—so sure that the Hindu had time to spring to his feet and grasp once more the hand that held the weapon.

"Master! Master!" he cried out. Brood turned to look at his man in sheer bewilderment. What could all this mean? What was the matter with the man?

"Down, Ranjab!" he commanded in a low, cautious tone, as he would have used in speaking to a dog when the game was run to earth.

"There is but one bullet left, sahib," cried the man.

"Only one is required," said the master hoarsely.

"You have killed your son. This bullet is for yourself!"

"Yes! Yes! But—but she! She lives! She—"

The Hindu struck his own breast significantly. "Thy faithful servant remains, sahib. Die, if thou wilt, but leave her to Ranjab. There is but one bullet left. It is for you. You must not be here to witness the death Ranjab, thy servant, shall inflict upon her. Shoot thyself now, if so be it, but spare thyself the sight of—"

He did not finish the sentence, but his strong, bony fingers went through the motion that told a more horrible story than words could have expressed. There was no mistaking his meaning. He had elected himself her executioner.

A ghastly look of comprehension flitted across Brood's face. For a second his mind slipped from one dread to another more appalling. He knew this man of his. He remembered the story of another killing in the hills of India. His gaze went from the brown fanatic's face to the white, tender, lovely throat of the woman—and a hoarse gasp broke from his lips.

"No! No! Not that!" he cried, and as the words rang out, Yvonne removed her horrified gaze from the blot of red and fixed it upon the face of her husband. She straightened up slowly and her arms fell limply to her sides.

"It was meant for me. Shoot, James!" she said, almost in a whisper.

The Hindu's grasp tightened at the convulsive movement of his master's hand. His fingers were like steel bands.

"Shoot!" she repeated, raising her voice. "Save yourself, for if he is dead I shall kill you with my own hands. This is your chance—shoot!"

Brood's fingers relaxed their grip on the revolver. A fierce, wild hope took all the strength out of his body—he grew faint with it.

"God, he—he can't be dead! I have not killed him. He shall not die—he shall not!" Flung the Hindu aside he threw himself down beside the body on the floor. The revolver as it dropped, was caught in the nimble hand of the Hindu, who took two long swift strides toward the woman who now faced him instead of her husband. There was a great light in his eyes as he stood over her and she saw death staring out upon her.

But she did not quail. She was past all that. She looked straight into his eyes, for an instant and then, as if putting him out of her thoughts entirely, turned slowly toward the two men on the floor. The man half raised the pistol, but something stayed his hand—something stronger than any mere physical opposition could have done.

He glared at the half-averted face, confounded by the most extraordinary impression that ever had entered his incomprehensible brain. Something strange and wonderful was transpiring before his very eyes—something so marvellous that even he, mysterious seer of the Ganges, was stunned into complete amazement and unbelief.

That strange, uncanny intelligence of his, born of a thousand mysteries, was being tried beyond all previous excursions. It was as if he now saw this woman for the first time—as if he had never looked upon her face before. A mist appeared to envelop her and through this veil he saw a face that was new to him—the face of Yvonne and yet not hers at all. Absolute wonder crept into his eyes.

Dinner Stories

Guest (departing from party): "We've had a simply delightful time!"

Hostess: "I'm so glad. At the same time, I regret that the storm kept all of our best people away."

In one of the aristocratic suburbs of Chicago there lives a woman who is becoming famous for the lavishness of her afternoon entertainments, but the tremendous amount of ceremony attending to such functions renders them so slow that few persons would accept the invitations if they could refuse them without giving offense to the wealthy and influential hostess. At a recent gathering of this nature a young business man came in late, making his way to his hostess, greeted her and apologized for his tardiness. "I am delighted to see you," was the cordial reply. "It's so good of you to come. But where is your brother?"

"Oh, he asked me to tell you how sorry he was that he could not come. You see, we are so busy now it's impossible for us to get away together; so we looked up to see which of us should come."

"How nice! And you won't?"

"No," said the young man, absently. "I lost."

"Is the lady of the house in?" inquired the gentlemanly agent.

"No," replied the lady's husband, wiping his hands on the kitchen apron he wore. "She's gone to a suffrage meeting."

"Then I guess you're the party I want to see. I have here a patent dish washing machine, especially adapted to the use of men who do their own housework."

Ruddy Cheeks—Sparkling Eyes—Most Women Can Have

Says Dr. Edwards, a Well-Known Ohio Physician.

Dr. F. M. Edwards for 17 years treated scores of women for liver and bowel ailments. During these years he gave to his patients a prescription made of a few well-known vegetable ingredients mixed with olive oil, naming them Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets, which they know them by their olive color.

These tablets are wonder-workers on the liver and bowels, which cause a normal action, carrying off the waste and poisonous matter that one's system collects.

If you have a pale face, hollow look, dull eyes, pimples, coated tongue, headaches, a listless, no-good feeling, all out of sorts, inactive bowels, you take one of Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets nightly for a time and note the pleasing results.

Thousands of women, as well as men, take Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets now and then just to keep in the pink of condition.

Some Facts About Wood

What Makes Wood Float. ETTA Prepared for the Gazette by the Forests Products Laboratory at The University of Wisconsin.

That wood floats is such a commonplace fact in our lives that we hardly give it any thought. If we lived in tropical climates we would learn to distinguish between woods that float and woods that do not float. Many of the woods of Mexico and South America are so heavy even when perfectly dry that they will sink in water, notably lignum-vitae, which is the wood commonly used for bowing balls.

Among our common native woods there are several that will not float when green. The cypress of the South is often grained a year before it is cut so that it will die and dry while standing in the water. It is possible to float the logs to the mill. At the Forest Products Laboratory, Madison, Wis., where the green or dry weight of all wood that is tested is determined, it was found that the green heartwood of some oaks and hickories, and the green sapwood of certain conifers is so heavy that when these parts of a tree are put into water, they will sink although the entire log will float.

The reason why some woods float is not because the substance of which they are made is lighter than water, but because the cavities in the cells are so large that the air in them buoys up the wood. The material of cellulose which composes the greater part of the cell wall is heavier than water so that if the air in the cells is replaced by water, the wood will sink. This is just what happens to wood which has been in water for a long time and has become "waterlogged."

It is the large water content of the heartwood of freshly felled oaks and hickories and of the sapwood of certain conifers that causes these woods to sink, for when they will float.

Lignum-vitae and other heavy tropical woods, even when dry, sink because of the small cavities in the cell wall compared to the thick cell wall that the air in the cavities is not enough to float the wood.

WHEN GOVERNOR GOETHALS LEAVES THE CANAL ZONE WILL ENTER CIVILIAN LIFE.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Panama, April 5.—When Governor Goethals leaves the canal zone he probably will retire from the army and enter civilian life. He has not yet made a public announcement to this effect but has frequently voiced his desire, probably after September next, to lead a quiet life and do only what he wishes.

General Goethals has not decided upon the place where he will make his home but it is generally understood here that he will reside in New York where he will become a consulting engineer. It has been said that he probably will form a partnership with S. V. Williamson who was formerly the engineer in charge of the Pacific Division of the Panama Canal construction work. Mr. Williamson recently made a brief visit to the isthmus and it is believed that the partnership was then discussed.

Governor Goethals has announced his early retirement from active labor on the Panama Canal, is manifesting an impatience to depart from the isthmus. He feels he has done his duty for his country and the army in spending eight strenuous years here.

PREPARING VESSELS FOR LAKE TRAFFIC

Expect Lake Shipping to be in Good Shape by the First of May.— Grain Shippers' Cleaned.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Milwaukee, April 5.—The work of fitting out boats which went into winter quarters here was well under way today. Similar operations have been started or will soon begin in other lake ports, and in spite of the poor outlook for the early part of the season, so far as bulk freight ships are concerned, a large number of vessels will sail before May 1. It is believed the first two weeks of navigation will see at least a third of the boats in the Lake Carriers' association in operation.

Thirty freighters have grain to take down the lake from Lake Superior and must load before the last of this month, and there are several others with coal cargoes at Buffalo. Some of these latter are not required to sail before May 16, according to their charters, but many will leave as early as possible.

Grain shippers have practically cleaned up the spot market at Duluth and until the demand increases so that shippers will pay a discount guarantee dispatch, or otherwise protect the ships against delay, very little business is likely to be done.

A few of the boats in the majority of the fleets will have to open the season with either grain or coal and the managers expect to have enough business for these. The remainder will be held until assurance of steady operations make it certain they will be able to show a profit.

Local mariners are speculating as to when the straits will open, and the coastwise navigation is that will occur some time next week.

SEEK TO INTEREST YOUNG ARCHITECTS IN EASTERN PRUSSIA.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Berlin, April 5.—The Association of German Architectural and Engineering Societies is seeking to interest young architects, especially those who have not yet achieved a practice which ties them down to one locality, to go to East Prussia and aid in the rebuilding of the province.

A list of the names of a number of "district architects" to supervise technical and artistic rebuilding activities in contemplated.

Officials of this kind are not now available, so academically trained private architects are being sought. They must live in the districts they supervise.

Salaries and expenses will vary according to districts and the condition in which the war has left them. The pay will average about 6,000 marks ($1,500).

SELL FOOD CARGOES IN ENGLISH COURTS

American Firm's Provisions Sold As Owners Were Tired of Delay in Getting Hearing on Cases.

London, April 5.—(Correspondence of The Associated Press)—Fifty thousand tons of provisions sent to English firms which the British suspected were German agents but the cases never came up for court decision. The supplies were bought, for the most part, on a much lower market than the present. Naturally the owners have suffered great loss through the delay, but the sale prices were well above the cost and would enable American shippers to break even if speedy settlements are made.

Under the international regulations controlling foodstuffs, the regulations generally accepted by both England and the United States, food is not contraband unless destined for the use of a hostile force. It would have been extremely difficult to prove to the satisfaction of an English court that most of the food consignments held in England were of enemy destination, much less that they were for use of the German army. Apparently the English government did not care to undertake such a task. At one time it was suggested that all detained foodstuffs should be sold to the American commission for the Relief of Belgium. But the English House of Trade would not consent to such sale, taking the position that the foodstuffs were needed in England. Consequently the cargoes were finally sold at current prices.

There is no place you can dispose of any thing as quickly and cheaply as through a classified ad. Try it and be convinced.

The reasons for Certain-teed Roofing

Every buyer needs the proper assurance, when he pays for the best quality, that a second or third quality will not be delivered. The market is flooded with too many brands. Some manufacturers with poor facilities too often meet competition by cutting quality. Some wholesalers buy any old quality, put their labels on it, and say it is the best. Our Certain-teed label is backed by the written guarantee of the world's largest manufacturer of asphalt roofings. It gives each buyer the assurance wanted, and our unequalled facilities for manufacturing enable us to sell it at a very reasonable price.

These are the reasons for

Certain-teed Roofing

Come to our mills and see how we make the goods. We know that our Certain-teed Roofing is the best quality that we can make. It's the best quality that can be made to last and remain waterproof on the roof. It is made with that one purpose in view. We also make cheap grade, poor quality roofings to meet the demand for very temporary roofs, but the Certain-teed label goes only on our best quality, longest life product. It is the grade which carries our Company name and endorsement and guarantee—1-ply 5 years, 2-ply 10 years, 3-ply 15 years.

If you want the right quality and want to be sure you are getting what you pay for, insist on the Certain-teed label. The price is reasonable. No one can tell the quality of a piece of roofing by looking at it. The man is not living who can take three kinds of roofing of different qualities and tell with any degree of accuracy the length of time each one will last on the roof. He cannot tell their relative values by looking at them. Why take the chance of guessing, when you can get the safest guarantee on the best quality goods at a reasonable price.

If for any reason you do not care for the highest quality—if you want a temporary roof, we also make goods sold at the lowest price on the market, because we have unequalled facilities, and are making approximately a third of the entire asphalt roofing and building papers of the whole world's supply. Our facilities enable us to beat all competition on price goods as well as on Certain-teed quality.

The difference between the total cost of the goods, the laying, etc., between quality goods and price goods is insignificant. It is a much better policy to cut out the guessing and let the manufacturer of real responsibility insure you on all the vital points of the whole world's supply. Our facilities enable us to beat all competition on price goods as well as on Certain-teed quality.

LET'S BOOST BUSINESS
Less Politics—More Prosperity

We have had enough starvation business—enough political "curse-alls" of every party, with their smug and bustling enough of politicians who promise economy and honesty in order to get into office and then play for votes or party power. We don't want cheap living—we want good times and make enough money to pay for the cost of a living, whatever it may be. We don't want cheap living—we want good business and good times for everybody and if we all pull together we will get them.

The frame of the politician is to promise everything. Many of them ought to be prosecuted for fraud on account of the difference between what they promise and what they deliver. There're worse than the business man who over-advertises the quality of his goods. Let the business interests, from the laborer to the superintendent, from the office boy to the president, from the hired man on the farm to the owner of the farm, remember that they have a common interest in good business and a square deal in business. Stop listening to the fakery and let's boost ourselves back into good times. It can be done. No more knuckers and false promises are wanted. We are going to be too busy to listen to any except those who promise good business legislation.

This evening an informal reception will be held for members and their wives and friends. No program has been arranged, but it is planned to spend the evening in a social manner. Eighty-two members of Carroll Council went to Beloit yesterday afternoon to pay their respects to the late Father Ward. With Beloit knights they marched from the latter's hall to St. Thomas' church, where the body laid in state, in the form of a huge cross. Over one hundred and seventy-five knights were in the group.

Expectations are that a large audience will greet Peter W. Collins of the Knights of Columbus lecture bureau when he lectures here a week from tonight at the Myers theatre on "Socialism, the Coming Menace." Mr. Collins' expenses are paid by the order and there is no charge for admission. This week letters of invitation will be mailed to the pastors of every church in the city. As the lecture is a great educational number pertaining to one of the paramount questions of the present age, the theatre was secured so as to permit a large gathering. Following this lecture Mr. Collins plans to answer any question asked regarding socialism.

EXTRAVAGANT OFFSPRING

By GRACE LEACH.

"Do you know what I wish to do today?" said the nice looking elderly woman. "I should like to indulge in some perfectly reckless extravagance, just to get even with my son."

"Your son!" said the other woman. "You surely don't mean to insinuate that your son doesn't like to spend money! I've always thought Benson Thorndike one of the most generous men I ever knew."

"He is. Why, my dear, that boy simply loves to spend money. And the worst of it is, he wants me to be extravagant, too, and somehow I just can't."

"Yes, I'll tell you about it," she went on. "You see, Maisie Greene, the daughter of some very old friends of mine in Toledo, was married last spring, and Ben wished me to send her something elegant for a wedding present. He suggested all sorts of hand-some silver and cut glass, and I took a whole day to look for something suitable, but everything that he had spoken of cost so frightfully that they seemed wickedly extravagant and I finally decided on a pretty pair of vases that were in good taste even if not awfully expensive."

"When I told Ben what I had bought he said 'Umph,' but after Maisie wrote the most enthusiastic thanks for what she called the 'exquisite and generous gifts,' I felt that I had made a wise choice. She urged me in her note to visit her, as she longed, she said, to have me see her new home which I had helped to make beautiful. So, on my way back from my summer trip East, I stopped over for a day in Toledo.

Maisie and Mr. Gilmore, her husband, gave me such a heart-warming welcome that I was really touched. I was in a mood to admire everything about their modest little home, but when I saw the rich oriental rug as I entered I was astonished.

"What a perfectly beautiful rug this is!" I couldn't help exclaiming as Maisie proudly took me into the living room, where there was a rug even handsomer than that in the hall.

"Yes," she said, "it's one of our greatest treasures. We didn't receive any presents we prize more."

"It's colors are extremely pleasing, and I like the design very much," added Mr. Gilmore, and, as Maisie told you, we consider it one of our choicest possessions."

"Well," I remarked, "I should think you would. I'm glad you haven't the little pottery vases in this room. They would be quite outshone by this magnificence."

"Oh," Maisie hastened to say, "we like the vases awfully well, too. They're in the little study where they just fit. But you must see the other rug. I don't believe you noticed it as we came in." We all went back into the hall. "Isn't that a beauty?" she asked. "I can hardly tell, dear Mrs. Thorndike, which one I like the better of the two."

"Oh, the other is richer," I said. "Though they're both really wonderful antiques. I assure you, Mr. Gilmore, that I don't believe you young people realize how grand you are with such beautiful examples of oriental art. When I began housekeeping I was thankful for ingrain carpets."

"I hope," he said, with a surprising gravity, "that you don't think we show lack of gratitude or appreciation. Surely you received Maisie's letter thanking you."

"Oh, for the vases? Yes, indeed. I'm awfully glad you liked them. But I was speaking of these marvelous rugs, for I really think it would be too bad for you not to fully realize what a little fortune is locked up in them. I don't suppose you've had much experience yet in buying rugs, but I have."

"Of course we knew you were a connoisseur," he answered, with a strangely embarrassed expression, "or you never would have made such a fine selection."

"I make a selection? I don't understand," I murmured.

"Why, didn't you select them yourself, Mrs. Thorndike?" asked Maisie.

"I selected these rugs? Certainly not. I never laid eyes upon them until now. I never even heard of them."

"Surely you must have—why—they came with your card," Maisie looked fairly dazed, but suddenly a great light burst in upon me.

"Now, do you wonder that I want to get even with that boy of mine?"—Chicago Daily News.

Great Minds Had Same Thought. "He giveth his beloved sleep," is an ancient saying which is merely another expression of the thought that he who lives a pure and upright life will sleep as a lovely and healthful babe sleeps. The mentally feverish Lord Byron, sleepless and distraught, wrote: "God bless the man who first invented sleep." So said Sancho Panza and so say I. Thus giving a new immortality to the immortal creation of Cervantes, Spain's greatest writer.

Appetite Follows Good Digestion

Nearly everyone indulges their appetite and the digestive organs are abused, resulting in a congestion of poisonous waste that clogs the bowels and causes much misery and distress.

GIANTS FACE EACH OTHER AT HAVANA

fight was a hard one, as he was "fit to go any distance." Willard's backers were certain that their man would win if the fight would be continued ten rounds. Willard himself asserted he was not in the least nervous over the result.

It was the old story of skill and strength against youth and strength with the betting odds of six to five on Johnson's skill. Johnson, one of the largest men who ever stepped into a prize ring, faced an opponent measurably larger and ten years younger than himself. The negro champion is thirty-eight years old. Willard is twenty-eight, weighs normally twenty pounds more than Johnson, and tops him five and one-half inches, being six feet six inches tall. Not within the history of the prize ring have two such giants been brought together.

The scene of the fight was the Havana race track, ten miles from the city. Thousands made their way to the track hours before the time set for the opening of the encounter. Tickets to the amount of $30,000 have been sold in advance and the three dollar seats were to be sold at the turnstiles at the four gates today. Sunrise found men waiting in line. ## AFTER BOUT TODAY WELTERWEIGHT TITLE DEMANDS ATTENTION

Next Big Fight in Boxing Calendar Will Be Clash Between Gibbons and Packey McFarland.

By Strikes.

When the debris of the Johnson-Willard scrap is cleared away with either Willard as a new champion or the "Big Dingie" still having the honor, the pugilistic stage will be set for a better scrap from a scientific point of view when Mike Gibbons, middleweight champ, and Packey McFarland, the Chicago stock yards champ, mingle for ten rounds at the welterweight limit, 146 pounds.

For over a year there has been a trouble brewing between this pair of sterling mitt artists, and challenges have been followed by counter-challenges and both appeared afraid to knock the chip off the other's shoulder and sign up. The weight in the agreement made at Chicago 144 pounds at three o'clock in the afternoon, which will not give McFarland a robe as the Chicago candidate for title honors formerly fought at the lightweight limit and certainly has not taken on an immense amount of weight during his short career. He has done no boxing and the Gibbons has been an acid test for him in a "come-back" campaign as a welterweight.

Andrews Looks Winner. Gibbons may have trouble in getting down to the weight, but he is right at above the 150 mark and in his recent mills weighed in around 164 pounds. On April 15th date for the match will be received for title honors like Tom Andrews of the Cream City club, in Milwaukee, will land the bout with his offer of 70 per cent of the receipts with a guarantee of $22,000. Mulekna, the rival Milwaukee matchmaker, is in the running for the match with an offer of 80 per cent of the gross and a guarantee of $22,000. New York promoters are angling for the big mill, but prospects are that it will go to the Cream City club, for the auditorium of the club holds 8,000 people and the Gotham men have no other "big" date.

There are no two fighters in the game today who have the scientific ability of McFarland and Gibbons, combining as they do the unusual scientific skill with punching power. It is probable that the battle will be staged in May, as Gibbons is now at Havana on a vacation from the padded arena after three hard bouts.

Tomorrow night Gusman Smith, who is being rated as a first class "lemon" since Jack Britton whipped him in Milwaukee, is to meet Weinert in New York. Smith leaped into national fame when he fought Chas. Tier, the French champion, in London, and lost on a shady foul. He was rated as the best white hope in the country at that time, but now it is a poor middleweight that can handle him a wallop in ten rounds. Smith gained a decision over Willard in the ring game, but lost to him in the Kansas cowboy first started out in the ring game.

Jimmy Clabby, the former middleweight kingpin, who is going down the slide, meets Young Ahearn for ten rounds, also at New York, Tuesday night. Ahearn and Clabby had a run-in recently at Philadelphia and it was a question who had the upper hand in the argument.

White vs. Duffy. On Thursday night White, the flatfooted and hard punching Chicago militant Hebrew, clashes with Jimmy Duffy at Buffalo for ten rounds. White has been cleaning up in the last six fights, but he is not a favorite. His most recent bout being against the veteran Leach Cross. Duffy will give White a hard mill, and without the Chicago left jabber is able to out-box a lucky punch. Duffy should gain a point victory over through his greater speed and aggressiveness, which bothers White.

In the Robideau bout, in which White scored a knockout in the first round, it is said White went into the battle "looking" sick and pale and started to fight likewise—sick and slow. Robideau is a rugged boy, and having White in such condition, he tore in to finish up quick, leaving the care and guard back in his corner. The strategem worked, for White was set, and that lightning left struck the final blow, and the Chicagoan took $1,200 for his minute's work in landing one punch.

Superior Match. The best match in Wisconsin this week is the meeting of Pat Brown, the Superior candidate for lightweight honors, and Joe Mandot, the southern favorite, on Friday night. Mandot in the north had not a record reputation, being rated a medium tier, but in New Orleans he owns the town from a boxing view. He was fought derby matches with Dundee, and any battler who can stand up before the sturdy Italian for twenty rounds is a first string man. Brown has shown good form in his late bouts and should give the southerner a stiff battle, as he is clever and fast with some experience in ring craft.

FACULTY OF SCHOOL ARE STAR ATHLETES

At Macalester College "Profs" Are Experts at Branches of Sports.

—St. Paul Sport Gossip.

(By Tim Sullivan.)

St. Paul, Minn., April 5.—Macalester College here in St. Paul has been famed for several things, but today it has a new claim to fame of having the most athletic corps of professors in the Northwest. Professors Hall, Cort and Kingery claim honors, but Professors Funk, Alexander, Burgess and Clark follow closely on their heels for honors.

J. P. Hall and D. N. Kingery form a reversible, interchangeable battery of the faculty baseball club. When one three "d" is mound, the other can trot out from behind the bat and do the twirling for a while. Kingery has the drop on Hall, however, for when his right arm gets tired he can twirl both for and with them.

Cort came here from Illinois. When Leo Hanna was making himself famous with his eccentricities at Illinois, Cort was buried and did not assert that he could beat Hanna. Coming to Minnesota, he took a class in boxing, and during the process of educating the youths, hands out some stiff jabs.

Burgess and Alexander star at tennis. Clark is good on the track. McKee follows his more active brethren by jarring loose with sport statistics.

Needs Manager. Mike Gibbons, Stanley Ketchell and Bob Fitzsimmons were today declared the greatest middleweights of all time by Abe Attell, former featherweight king, who did not hesitate in giving an opinion that of the three Mike stood foremost and that he could easily beat Gunboat Smith. Abe says the Mike should have a manager, however, as he is not getting anywhere by being his own director. Abe further asserts he would give Mike a $50,000 a year guarantee with no hesitation.

Talk New League. Although the South Dakota-Minnesota baseball league seems to have fallen by the wayside, there is yet some talk of establishing a league composed of towns in the Northern Pacific from Glendive, Mont., to Jamestown, N. D. Such a league busted a few years ago.

Swimming has been raised to the dignity of a sport at the University of Minnesota. It has been decided out of the board of trustees that the first and second places in the conference meet. This will give the aquatic stars something to work for and it is believed will revive interest in swimming.

Too Much Mail. Mike Collins is getting too much mail. He said today that he didn't think that a boxer in the world who has not written him would be influenced, if terms and conditions were right, to "meet" any Every day he gets several such letters. These, along with those who think they ought to have passed swamp his mail. He opens such epistles hoping they contain orders for $500,000, but they don't.

Pitcher Released. Roy Patterson pitcher who figured in the championship that the Millers grabbed off in the Association, has been released to return to the Northern league.

Mixing vs. Miskie. Mixing Billy Murray with Bill Miskie at Hudson caught to be worth the carfare to Hudson anyhow. Chubby Tommy Gibbons will attest to the fact that Murray is some cute. Miskie is keen for the mixing stuff and the two Bills should make a good bill.

Discover New Hope. Scribes over in Minneapolis are all fussed up because they have just discovered they have a real heavy weight amateur boxer in their midst. His name is Glen Ahlquist. Down in Cleveland he won the heavyweight championship of the A. A. A. When the news of his victory came over the wire, the scribes headed for the city directory. Then they remembered.

FEAR RACE RIOTS IN CUBA TODAY

Havana, April 5.—Fearing race riots at the fight, President Menocal has ordered three squadrons of cavalry, 250 rurs, guards and 125 infantrymen to patrol the race course during the battle. Five hundred other officers and members of the Cuban army, who will be present as spectators, also will be ready to shoulder arms at a moment's notice if any outbreak occurs.

Pitcher Ellis Johnson of the White Sox is slated for the minors. Rowlands gave him a final test by sending him to the route against Oakland. He was hit hard.

SEEKING GAME WITH BELVIDERE ALUMNI

Lakota Cardinals Wish to End Season With Victory Over Illinois Team to Clinch Claims.

Manager George Caldwell is seeking to put the Janesville-Lakota Cardinals in action Saturday night against the Belvidere Alumni team to complete the Lakotas' season and clinch the title claims over the alleged Illinois champs. The Cardinals have been seeking this game for the last three weeks but to date the Belvidere team has showed no inclination to risk whatever just claims they may have, against the Cardinals here.

The Belvidere five is the only team to have an edge on the Lakotas in the matter of games played, having defeated the local team twice in their small gym, when the Lakotas did not have their full strength, not having Atwood in the last game, which was lost by two points. In the first game the Lakotas played they lost by one point and the defeat was entirely due to the lack of regulation court, the floor being far too small for any dribbling or good team work. It is a case of "get the ball and shoot" and under this handicap the Lakotas came out second best.

In the game played at Janesville, the Lakotas had no trouble in winning the game and they are confident they could double the score on them in a return game.

Claim is made by Belvidere in a recent statement that it was not the regular Co. E. team of Fond du Lac whom the Cardinals defeated. It happens that Hawkins, the giant center for the Co. E. five was injured the day previous to the Lakota contest and his place was taken by Thompson, the Lawrence college crack, who is rated as an All-State college center. Limited knowledge on the part of the Belvidere men on the playing ability of Thompson and that the remainder of the team were regulars and not subs, allows a weak claim to be made. At Belvidere the Co. E. five announced the alumni and they have been trying to figure it out ever since.

If the Belvidere team plays here

ARE 121 GUN CLUBS FOR TRAP SHOOTING

Statistics Show That There is This Many Organized Clubs in State of Wisconsin.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]

Millwaukee, April 5.—One hundred and twenty-one clubs in Wisconsin have organized gun clubs, according to figures just compiled by an ammunition company.

The statistics tend to show that there probably are more actual participants in trap shooting than in any other sport. The total number of clubs in the United States is given as 3,221. The estimated average membership is 50, making the total membership 161,050. The increasing popularity of the hand trap is said to swell the number of organized shooters. This is particularly noticeable in farming communities. The total of all classes is estimated at 400,000.

Ivy Wingo is making a fine showing in the outfield with the Cincinnati Reds, and it appears as if Herzog may give him a permanent berth there.

BEAR VS. BULL.

Knights' Ferry, Ore., April 5.—Blacksmith Sam Baugh has had little Wall street experience but nevertheless has learned to eschew the bulls and bears. He went to Postmaster Collins' office to look at the new Collins bull, forgetting to do his red shirt. When the bull charged at his shirt, Baugh ducked in to a cave on the river bank, only to scramble out again. The bull charged again and he, divided back into the grotto, and then back and forth on several round trips.

"Stay in," yelled Collins, from a tree.

Won't there's a bear inside." Baugh grabbed the bull by the horns and threw him. Later, the men invaded the cave with guns and got a mother bear and two cubs.

Our Steel-Clad Armada. The second of the navy. Mr. Josephus Daniels, is a staunch advocate not alone of popularizing the navy, but also of correcting many false conceptions concerning it, and his efforts to do so are the subject of the American public. He decided that a most effective way to accomplish this was to make the navy the modern method—the moving picture and particularly Lyman H. Howe's travel festival. For this reason he granted Howe's photographers special permission to make a remarkable production which will be presented at the Myers theatre, Friday, April 9, and Saturday, April 10. Only by means of these films can the public appreciate what the navy really is and does. It is a subject that should be seen by every citizen. It is a careful and most detailed presentation of the role played by each of a crew of 1,000 men or over on our super-dreadnoughts, of the gradual and systematic training of every man aboard, of the diversity of naval routine such as loading drills, anchor drills, torpedo drills, washing decks, sewing, boat racing, sports, inspections, etc., etc. Every foot of the film teems with gripping interest. It furnishes convincing proof to the citizen that the navy is not a waste of money, but a necessity for the efficiency of our men and ships, and, as such, it comes as a most welcome assurance in these days when it is more apparent than ever before that the well-being, the safety, in fact the whole life of a nation may depend upon its steel-clad Armada.

The romance of industry as expressed in the making of a National Cash register constitutes another feature of the program. Howe selected this particular plant not alone because it is typical of American skill, enterprise and organization, but because it is recognized the world over as the model manufacturing plant—a monumental realization of an idea and an ideal. The variety of the scenes may be imagined, the process being that 90 trades and professions are engaged here in manufacturing machines from 8,800 different kinds of raw material coming from all quarters of the globe. The registers are shipped to 75 different countries and protect 33 different coinsages of money.

Dan Moyley, who plays the part of Phelan, (Officer 666), in George Klein's five part comedy founded on that delightful farce, is the man who really makes the character famous. Moyley is an Irishman as his name suggests, and the Cohan & Harris management made no mistake in casting the witty Irishman for the title role. After playing nearly five hundred American cities and towns, Moyley was sent with an "Officer 666" company to London. His instant success there was a repetition of the American success, so when the question of filming the play arose, he was promptly signed up for his familiar part.

Moyley relates a curious experience (the defel) him during the lengthy London engagement. He was immensely popular from the start in the English capital and had the unique sensation of seeing his name in the papers, and his face on hand with men and posters. His face was so well known that the London "bobbies" almost to a man gravely saluted Mr. Moyley as he passed by on the street.

One day when Mr. Moyley, or "Dinny" (as the members of the company called him) found himself in a crowd in Piccadilly, he felt a hand gently inserted in his waistcoat pocket. "Dinny" quietly grasped the hand that was groping and firmly held the gentleman's head in what is known as a "strangle-hold" when, of course, attracted the usual "boxy" who was going to arrest both pickpocket and the man who was holding him. He picked up the pickpocket and released the pickpocket with the remark, "Stay there, now. Don't go away." Then he shook hands with Moyley in great dignity. More astonishment was caused by the fact that the pickpocket actually "stayed there."

"Verily," said "Dinny," in relating his experience at the theatre that "they do things differently over here."

"Officer 666" plays at the Myers theatre Wednesday, April 7, matinee and evening.

"AGRIC" STUDENTS

Instructs Each High School Agricultural Student in Spring Work—Some Work Already Started.

(By Allen B. West.)

The instructor of agriculture in the local high school has been spending a delightful week among the fifty boys of his class. As spring approaches it has been the plan to line up each member of his class with some home project that is educational. The best way to do this seems to be to go to the homes of the boys and with the boys and parents together talk over the project suitable to the conditions surrounding the various homes.

The reception given in the boys' homes has been most gratifying, coupled as it has been with a spirit of co-operation on the part of the parents and the boys so necessary to the success of the plan.

Many of the boys were at work on the projects which they had already undertaken. Several had set hens and three were counting the days when chickens would begin to appear in their incubators. Some had tomato and other plants already growing in boxes they had made for such purposes.

One boy had made two hot beds, in one of which had plants growing. About forty of the fifty boys taking agriculture live within the city limits. For most of these the projects were limited to garden work, horticulture and poultry raising, yet there are a few living on the outskirts of the city who have the advantage of the large farm operations.

It was through the kindness of Robert Moore, Jr., that visits were made to the boys residing in the more remote places.

Fifty miles were covered with Robert's auto in making the trip, the greatest distance from Janesville being a farm in Footville. On this trip ten boys were visited who plan to enter the acre corn contest and that will be the project upon which they will work, beginning this spring and continuing through until the corn harvest. Aside from this some of the boys are putting in alfalfa and some are doing work in cow testing. For this latter project the boys select one or two cows from the herd on the farm and weigh them at intervals to test it for butter fat. Some of them have the Babcock tester at home, and some will bring the milk to school and use the tester there.

Some are caring for the home orchards. This work involves pruning, spraying and the proper care of the soil in the orchard.

Some are caring for grape vines and the questions of their proper pruning were numerous.

Selection, care and testing of seed corn has been another home project. Many were the questions asked and answered, and it was a pleasure to meet the boys' mothers as well as the fathers and to witness their fine spirit of co-operation.

Some of the boys whose parents live in the city are looking forward to running a farm in the future, for many Janesville professionals and business men own farms though they do not live on them.

In the meantime there is work for all to do, for all have home grounds of greater or less extent, and the planning if the garden is requiring thought at present. The execution of these plans is of no small educational value and is assigned to a number of boys.

Many of the senior boys have been planning their home grounds and this spring will begin setting out shrubbery, vines and plants according to their plans and procuring the shrubs and seeds required for the work.

One of the town boys is fortunate in having three vacant city lots to work upon. When he has put into early potatoes and when this crop is off will seed to alfalfa.

Some are to raise tomatoes, and as it is the early bird that catches the worms in selling tomatoes they have the plants already well started.

The care of horses and the raising of calves is real farm work wherever done, and this is the task of some of the students, while others are planning to build fences and lay cement walks.

Two or three of the boys, not having work at home, are to work ## in green house and nursery. Definite reports will be made on these projects and school credits will be given for the work according to its merits.

"A PAIR OF SIXES"

HILARIOUS COMEDY

Three Speedy Acts at Myers Saturday Evening Prove Most Laughterable.

For ingenuity of plot, bright dialogue, humorous complications and most amusing situations, "A Pair of Sixes" may well be termed the best play of its kind ever shown in this city. It is by Edward Peble, the author of "The Littlest Rebel" and "The Prince Chap," and is in three acts.

The plot deals with the affairs of George B. Nettleton and T. Boggs, partners in a pill manufacturing business, who are constantly at loggerheads, each longing to be rid of the other, but neither willing to sell out. They summon their lawyer, but due to his various propositions for dissolution until in despair he suggests a contract with numerous conditions by which a hand of poker is to be played, with the penalty that the loser shall quit the business for a year and in the interval serve as a servant in the household of the winner. The lawyer is interested primarily because he hopes to see T. Boggs Jones and with his hands sealed by the contract he will be humiliated before the girl with whom he is in love, and in whom the lawyer is interested. The breaking of the contract means a forfeiture of $5,000 and sacrificing his share in the business. Johns loses to a pair of sixes, from which the play takes its name, and Nettleton and the lawyer both feel he will break the contract rather than stick it out for a year. But he grins his teeth and bravely enters upon his duties as a butler in the Nettleton household. He is found here performing his menial duties by his sweetheart, who arrives as a guest of the Nettletons. He cannot explain his position to her, and there is more trouble for him through the attentions of an eccentric English housemaid who pursues him for a husband. This comical complication is developed through a rapid series of hilarious situations and the fun rattle along until the unfortunate Nettleton's sweetheart takes a hand in the game and rescues him from the clutches of his partner. The latter, who is glad to end the agreement, for he has mistaken the girl and believes she is in love with him, and his affinity creates an uproarious entanglement.

Moyley, who plays the part of Nettleton, is played by the senior partner Nettleton, who arrives as a guest of the Nettletons. He cannot explain his position to her, and there is more trouble for him through the attentions of an eccentric English housemaid who pursues him for a husband. This comical complication is developed through a rapid series of hilarious situations and the fun rattle along until the unfortunate Nettleton's sweetheart takes a hand in the game and rescues him from the clutches of his partner. The latter, who is glad to end the agreement, for he has mistaken the girl and believes she is in love with him, and his affinity creates an uproarious entanglement.

A return engagement of this clever comedy would no doubt be well received by Janesville theatre-goers.

Have an Arctic Bunk?

A "bunk" house is an Arctic hotel made of logs, with moss chinks, a dirt roof and a dirt floor. A great sheet from stove keeps it warm. Two rows of bunks, covered with grass or brush, extend along the walls. The old-fashioned string and latch hold the whip-sawed door closed and there is a place to cook the meals. To stay over night costs a dollar.

Worry and Nervous System.

Inasmuch as worry is primarily a disease of the mind, and since every portion of the body is intimately connected with every other part of a network of nervous tissue of great complexity, we naturally seek for the causes of these manifestations, first of all, in the nervous system.

Do Postmen Get Letters?

Do you suppose the post office clerks care to receive letters? I have my doubts. They get into a dreadful habit of indifference. A postman, I imagine, is quite callous. Conceive his delivering one to himself without being startled by a preliminary double knock!—Charles Dickens.

Whittall Rugs

The Pride of the Manufacturer,

The Pride of the Dealer,

The Pride of the Owner.

There must be some reason for their concerted opinion. And there is a reason. They are splendid rugs—the best made in America.

Ask us to show them to you and to tell you why they are the best. Ask the people who are using them and have been using them for years with complete satisfaction.

They have all the beauty and charm of Oriental Floor Coverings and one of their chief beauties lies in the fact that they are quite within the limits of the moderate pocket-book.

A Popular Priced REDFERN

"Redfern Corsets are expensive" — we have heard it said. True, some of the models do run rather high in price but even these, because of the service they give, are economical in the long run.

We have, however, more popular priced numbers representing the same standards for which REDFERN CORSETS are famous, but made of domestic fabrics and particularly adapted for slight or average figures. The same high class boning is used as in the more expensive styles, and the same ground top clasps, but the designs, while being strictly a la mode, are simpler and more easily made. They are admirable for the woman who is particular about her appearance but cannot afford the luxury of an expensive garment.

Among these Redfern models is Style 6C81, just brought out, with medium high bust and cutaway skirt. It is a model that is adaptable for daily wear—strong, attractive, and serviceable. Redfern Models from $3.00 to $15.00
